Subject: Options – ISE FX Options Margin Levels

The ISE has determined applicable margin levels for each currency product pursuant to ISE Rule 1202(d), which requires the Exchange to review five-day price changes over the preceding three-year period. The margin level is set at a level that would have covered price movements during the review period at least 97.5% of the time (“confidence level”). The ISE will review these margin levels each quarter in January, April, July, and October.

Upon completion of its review, ISE FX margin levels for the trading period October 14, 2016 – January 13, 2017, will be as follows:
